

Dr. rer. nat. Stephanie Selke

Position:

Head of Department

Department:

Toxicology and Immunology

University:

Institute for Occupational and Maritime Medicine, Germany

Short Bio:

A graduated chemist specialized in analytical chemistry. Since 2022 she is the head of the Department of Toxicology and Immunology at the Institute for Occupational Medicine and Maritime Medicine. In this position she is engaged in human biomonitoring focusing occupational and environmental toxicology studies of people exposed to hazardous substances. Her previous activities included positions in industry in commercial analytical laboratories with focus on trace analysis of pollutants in environmental compartments and in humans as well as research work focussing on the development of instrumental analytical methods.

Expertise:

human biomonitoring, chemical pollution and toxicological risks, occupational and environmental medical assessment values